

Thank you

Thank you to everyone who voted in the General Election in Broxtowe and in particular to everyone who was good enough to give me their vote. I have been touched by the number of emails and thank you to everyone who has contacted me. I am also really grateful to the numerous friends, work colleagues, my family and, of course, Broxtowe Conservatives all of whom have worked so hard in the last few years to win back the seat.

As I said in my acceptance speech, Broxtowe has a tradition of electing moderate MP's who work hard for all their constituents and I will continue that tradition.

At the time of writing senior members of the Conservative Party and Liberal Democrats are meeting and I hope their discussions are successful. I am off to Westminster tomorrow to go through the procedure of getting a pass, and taking up an offer from a colleague to share his desk until I am allocated an office. I very much hope you will bear with me whilst I get organised. I do read emails but may struggle at the moment to give everyone a personal reply though urgent emails will be dealt with immediately.

It is a great honour being an MP and I think too many forget we are the servants of the people. I will not only serve you as your MP but will also be your voice in Parliament.

As ever
Anna Soubry
